

כל עוד שהנר דולק אפשר לתקן

"As Rabbi Yisrael Salanter returned home very late one night, he suddenly noticed that a light was still burning in the home of the shoemaker. He knocked on the door and asked "Why are you still sitting and working at such a late hour?"

"As long as the candle burns," replied the shoemaker, "it is still possible to repair."

Those words made a great impression upon Rabbi Salanter. He would repeat them on many occasions, saying "As long as the candle burns, it is still possible to repair! As long as a person is alive and his soul is within him, he can still rectify his deeds."

עשרת ימי תשובה, As we approach these days of self introspection,

Torah MiTzion Kollel

Invites you to an evening of song and film on ליל סליחות

September 24, 2011

Hosted by:

Congregation Bais Abraham

6910 Delmar Boulevard

9:00 pm

Followed by 11:00 pm slichot

Young Israel Synagogue

8101 Delmar Boulevard

11:30 pm

Followed by 1:00 pm slichot

